He also recommended that the plan be sent to all departments, transfer station, and road agent. Discussion ensued regarding a railroad bed, length of cul de sac, road width, soil type of the area, whether Derry should be notified, and regional impact.

Public discussion began with Erica Olson, 23 Beacon Hill Road, questioned the acreage per lot. Mr. Haight explained the lot size, and Mr. Goldstein explained open space developments. She also wanted to know the average dollar value of the homes to be built in the subdivision. Mr. Haight thought the homes would be approximately 3,000 square feet and cost around $250,000 and up.

James Olson, 23 Beacon Hill Road, said the road is treacherous and currently has problems turning into his driveway. He wanted to know if there were any plans to flatten this section of the road. Mr. Turner explained that 3-4 feet of the hill would be shaved off and a low area filled in. Mr. Olson was also concerned about the location of the new road and headlights being directed towards his home.

Kevin Cote, 44 Beacon Hill Road, expressed his concern about the sharp corner. Beacon Hill Road had been patched several times, and he would rather that the whole road was fixed instead of patched.

Mrs. Crisler commented that open space developments tend to bring a higher dollar value to the homes being built.

Debbie Livingstone, 28 Beacon Hill Road, questioned the noise level from Route 93. Mr. Haight explained that there was 300-400 feet from Route 93 to the development.

Mr. Turner recommended that the plan be sent to all departments, transfer station, and road agent for review. He also recommended a drainage study be sent to Rockingham County Commission District, a traffic report, and a complete and detailed engineering plans of improvements to Beacon Hill Road.
